ABOUT US

TRANSFORM (Training and Facilitation for Natural Resources Management) is a non-governmental organization based in West Nusa Tenggara, Indonesia since 2004. We focuses on activities ranging from facilitation, training, mediation and study on issues of community development and sustainable natural resource management. Since we believe that people are the foundation of transformation, we express our concern via advocacy, research, and capacity-building activities to the community. We also have the idealistic ambition to promote social change and concern for the development process by poin out values including participation, democracy, equality, and fighting for gender justice. Transform conducts thorough critical assessments of current approaches and attempts to systematically synthesize and evaluate them in order to remain relevant in a vast changing world.

VISION

The realization of skilled and capable human resources in natural resource management that emphasizes the values of justice, participatory and sustainable.

MISSION

- Develop a participatory, equitable and sustainable natural resource management methodology.
- Developing sustainable quality of human resources through training, mentoring, workshops and capacity building.
- Providing consulting, assistance and facilitation services in natural resources
- Develop best-practices models and product knowledge packages.
- Conduct research and create critical opinions regarding social dynamics and the development agenda through the preparation of policy briefs and policy papers.
- Other activities that are in line with the organization's vision

The Management's Welcome Message

This profile can help readers understand why our organization was founded and how far it has progressed. Our motivation for establishing this organization comes from the commitment to create transformative and meaningful change, particularly in Indonesia's natural resource management.

Transform has worked with different organizations, agencies and multi-stakeholders to carry out programs and research on cross-sectoral issues since its start in 2004. These activities have strengthened and professionalized the organization. In addition, along the way, our organization is supported by people who are tenacious and skillful in the efforts to expand and make Transform better.

Therefore, we express our appreciation and gratitude to everyone who have worked with Transform, as their trust has enabled our organization to continue to develop and perform well. It is hoped that in the future more partners will work with us in pursuing natural resource management that is not merely sustainable but humane for the community as well.

Director,

Dr. Markum
